The programme continued through 9th and 10th Five Year Plan.
By the end 10th Five Year Plan, 597 districts were covered under TLC.485 districts were covered under PLP.328 districts were covered under CEP.
As a cumulative outcome of these efforts, 127.45 million persons became literate out of which 60% were females.
Despite of this significant effort, as per census 2001 still there were 39.52million non-literate adults (15+) in the country and illiteracy continues to be an area of national concern.

It was therefore considered necessary to continue the National Literacy Mission during 11th Five year Plan.
It was also decided to modify the programme suitably to meet the contemporary challenges.
Government also announced that literacy would be its key programme instrument for emancipation and empowerment of women.
Government expects increase in female literacy to become a force multiplier for all other social development.

In this context, it was considered imperative that the National Literacy Mission as a programme instrument be recast with an enhanced focus on female literacy.
To recast the mission, a country wide consultation was conducted.
A series of consultative meetings were held across the country with representatives of the govt of the states, NGOs, literacy practitioners, State Resource Centres, Universities and other stakeholders.

It is in this background, a new programme namely Saakshar Bharat (Literate India) has been devised.
Saakshar Bharat aims to create a ‘LITERATE SOCIETY’ through a variety of teaching learning programmes for non-literate and neo-literate adults in 15+ age group.
