Adult Literacy Course makes Salma self-confident

Out Door Cap Company Inc USA also came forward to fund the initiative. DAM designed a nine-month literacy course for 25 selected factory workers.

After completion of the course, 25 learners are now able to read and write by themselves. They can maintain family accounts. They are able to make nutritious food at home and work places. They can maintain hygienic cleanliness. They learnt about various social issues stated above. Now they lead a more decent life.

Lessons learned:

- o Adult literacy course at work place helps increase and improve quality of produces.
- o Capacity building initiatives help improve relationship between officers /staff and workers.
- o Increases ability to exchange opinions on different issues with family members.

Challenges:

- o Because of tiredness, a few learners were not interested to participate in Adult Literacy Course after office work.
- o Notion of these workers was that their factory is a place for work not learning.
- o Due to pregnancy and resignation several learners dropped their names from the course.

DAM, Young and hat BD Limited and OUTDOOR CAP, USA jointly agreed to continue the literacy intervention. Another new batch of 25 illiterate factory workers was selected to complete the nine-month course. It was also decided to continue education for those who already completed the course so that they do not forget whatever they had learnt earlier.

Salma Begum, 28, wife of Kazal Ahmed is an inhabitant of Baufal upazila in Patuakhali district.

Salma's father was a poor share cropper at a remote place in Baufal upazila. With his meagre income from cultivation, he rarely able to meet the family requirements. So he also earned money by doing job of a day labourer. Despite this poverty was their constant companion. This is why Salma could not pursue primary education till attainment of age of 15 years.

At this stage a distant aunt visited their house and observed their miserable condition. She proposed a job to Salma at a garment factory named Young an Hat (BD) Ltd, Chittagong EPZ. After passing 10 years at this factory a supervisor of Young an Hat (BD) Ltd., enlisted her to undergo a nine-month (April 2011 to January 2012) Adult Literacy Course launched by Dhaka Ahsania Mission (DAM) with financial assistance of Out Door Cap Company Inc, USA, a buyer of the garment factory.

Besides basic education Salma learnt many important issues of day-to-day life. The issues are child marriage, ill effects of dowry, women's rights, first aid, reproductive health, mother and child care, importance of education, means of improvement of standard of living, means of earning extra income, family planning, healthcare, cleanliness and rules and regulations at workplace, accountability as well as other essential issues of practical life.

On conclusion of Adult Literacy Course Salma said, 'Now I am able to take decision at my own. I am self-confident and can easily tackle any situation. At present I help my child in study. I fully enjoy living'. Because of literacy course, all avenues of success are now open to me, she added.

Young an Hat (BD) Ltd is one of the largest Korean export manufacturers of caps around the globe. It is also the largest single foreign investor in Bangladesh.

Young an Hat (BD) Ltd operates two factories in Bangladesh with approximately 3,000 workers. The bulk of its exports go to USA.

Through a literacy base-line survey, Young an Hat (BD) Ltd., discovered that more than 50% of its total workforce are illiterate.

Because of illiteracy the workers were unable to provide quality products. With a view to changing the situation Out Door Cap Company Inc USA requested DAM to provide non-formal education to the garment workers. Accordingly DAM agreed to provide support on non-formal education to them.
